Wonder how the Chief Sam adherents in Oklahoma are taking to the latest stunts of their pious Chief?

There are far too many big "Is" in Tulsa. If we had fewer leaders and more good followers our future would be much brighter.

Will Mr. Russell of the Chief Sam delegation who wrote to THE STAR a few weeks ago praising Sam, please let us hear from him again?

When the Negroes of America forget partisanship and vote for men and measures on their respective merits only, then will dawn the political salvation of the race in this country.

Capt. Jackson in receipt of a letter from a relative of whom he had received no word for thirty years, saying she read in THE TULSA STAR about the death of his wife. She lives in Tennessee and she reads THE STAR. "Nuf Sed."

A number of people are inquiring of W. L. McKee, the land man and astute politician, just where he stands in the political triangle now before the people of Tulsa for solution. But the big fellow so far has been unable to find the hypotenuse, and to all inquiries he simply replies: "Like an inflated balloon, I am in the air and don't know where I will land." However, it will pay us all to watch McKee, because he is a wise puller as well as a hair puller in political scrimages and he might slip one over on us any old time.

NUYAKA NOTES.

Our school is progressing nicely, the attendance is good. Prof. P. L. Garrett is giving perfect satisfaction and is loved and honored by both pupils and parents. Hurrah! The school board has made several improvements at the school house this week.

Mrs. Kitty Boston has returned after an extended visit with her mother and other relatives in Southern Texas. We all join Mr. Boston in welcoming her home, for she was missed in both church and Sunday school as well as at home.

The Wanza brothers' sister came up from Texas and spend a few days with them.

Mr. Simon Wanza and Mr. Nick White have decided that Texas is a better place than Oklahoma, hence they have departed for Texas to make their future home. Their wives will join them later.

Master Adam Rucker and little William Lee are on the sick list.

MURDERER Bound Over

Special to The Tulsa Star.

CLAREMORE, Okla., March 11.—The case of Jim Nash, the tramp negro who cut to death H. J. Jaggars, a respected colored tailor of this city last Saturday night, came up for preliminary hearing this morning and the murdered was bound over to the district court without bond. Feeling was high against the accused man and threats of lynching were freely made during the trial. A strong force of deputies was necessary to protect the man from the wrath of the dead man's friends.

Nash had cut some wood for Jaggars for which he charged 25 cents. Because Jaggars did not quit his work to pay this small amount upon demand, he was cut to death.

Muskogee Lawyer Wins Land Case

A. S. McRea, a prominent lawyer of Muskogee, was in the city Thursday trying an important land case in the matter of Layard Chambers, plaintiff, vs. Steve Grayson, defendant. The case was decided in favor of Grayson.

E. B. CLINE

The popular City Auditor, who is a candidate before the primaries for re-election

WHEATLEY OUT FOR COMMISSIONER

The announcement of Mr. J. H. Wheatley as candidate for commissioner No. 2 appears in this issue of The Star. The old-timers will recall that Mr. Wheatley has served the city as commissioner and is familiar with the office and its duties. He is the man who put water on Greenwood, and being of Irish blood he hopes to celebrate the 17th as the people's choice as nominee for one of the commissionerships of this city.

Evans Cafe Opening

The Evans Cafe, which opened for business in the Martin building about a week ago, is rapidly advancing in the front ranks among the eating houses in the East end. On the 20th of this month Mr. and Mrs. Evans will give a regular opening. At that time everything will be free and the person holding the ticket with the most holes punched in it, which tickets are being given out at the Evans now, will receive a premium of $3.00 or a free meal ticket for that amount.

AN ELECTION IS NEAR.

Tulsa is planning for a city election which will mean much to every citizen, regardless of race or condition, since the future of Tulsa is the issue.

The men who have made Tulsa and the men who regard Tulsa as their home will see that good men and true will be placed upon the ticket and an intelligent vote will be expected from those who care enough about home affairs to go to the polls and cast their votes.

The Star stands, at all times, for the best interests of the town and is pledged to no party or candidate. We hope to see representative men in office, capable men, who will go into their offices with the confidence of the people behind them. A little thought before election will always save a long complaint after candidates have been selected and elected.

There are many things which we can do to help in this movement of the good people of Tulsa to make a Greater Tulsa, which will cost us but a small effort.

We have, at the same time, an opportunity to make friends for us in the matter of sentiment against laws which deny us the right to vote. If we are able to convince our friends that we can cast an intelligent vote, in the interest of the best policies for the community, we will make friends for the future who will stand by us. If for no reason more than that we stood by them in an unflinching way.

We do not take the liberty to suggest, at this time, any particular candidate of any particular party. Every citizen has his friends. We love the voter who stays with his friends. But we would suggest that we go into this campaign in earnest, with a view to making a fair and square demonstration of our ability to solve serious public problems in a way which reflects credit to us.

We call attention of our readers to the fact that the people of Tulsa have shown a disposition to treat us more fairly than hands towns in the state and we have not done our duty if we do not reciprocate in kind.

The list of candidates already announced are sufficient to please any man or any party and we earnestly hope that our readers will take this matter seriously, study the issues carefully and vote intelligently. The fate of Tulsa does not rest with any political party, but with individuals who forget party lines in their desire to serve their community.

It is certainly a pitiful sight to see an old delapidated back number trying to hold a place in the front ranks.

Candidates for the municipal plums are busy "announcing." Meanwhile the common fellows are trying to decide who is really the best man.

Have you ever stopped to think what a stupendous task it is to try to please everybody? He who undertakes this task is sure to come to some disastrous end.

It takes pride as well as money to make beautiful cities. Pride in our homes, pride in the streets and alleys in our community. Now what citizen of Tulsa can feel much pride in North Greenwood and other streets in the East End on a rainy day?

WASHINGTON, Feb. 23.—While President Zamora, head of the Haytian army, has been more than triumphant through the north against Theodore's rebel forces and occupying the seat of the revolution, Cape Haytien, a spirit of unrest, has broken out in Port Au Prince, the capital.
